Manager Commentary

Your portfolio's broad diversification helped to moderate the impact of market volatility this quarter.

As at March 31, 2022

U.S., international and emerging markets equities declined, largely as a result of the Russia-Ukraine conflict. Conversely, Canadian equities gained, given the rising price of oil. While U.S., international and emerging markets equities detracted from the portfolio's performance, Canadian equities contributed.

MER is annualized as at August 31, 2021. Please refer to the Annual Management Report of Fund Performance for further details.

Benchmark Blend: 40% FTSE Canada Universe Bond Index (CAD) / 18.4% S&P/TSX Composite Index (CAD) / 5% S&P 500 Index (CAD) / 36.6% S&P/TSX Composite Dividend Index (CAD)

Inflation was high and, as a result, the Bank of Canada raised its key overnight interest rate to 0.50%. Canadian bonds declined and detracted from the portfolio's performance.
